

Suzanne Salvo

BIO:

Suzanne Salvo and her husband/partner Chris are co-owners of Salvo Photography, an international award-winning studio with bases in Italy and the U.S. The Salvos has traveled to over 65 countries on assignments ranging from ad campaigns, annual reports and editorial projects. Chris Salvo is past president of the Houston chapter of ASMP (The American Society of Media Photographers) and an active member of NAPP (The National Association of Photoshop Professionals). His images have been featured in numerous juried exhibitions including FOTOFEST 2008 and can be regularly seen in publications such as Newsweek and the UK Financial Times. At IABC, Suzanne served on the 2003-2004 International Executive Board and she is a past president of IABC/Houston, which named her Volunteer of the Year in 2002. She is the current VP of Growth and Development for IABC Southern Region. Additionally, Suzanne writes the informative on-line column, "Visually Speaking" for CWBulletin, conducts action-packed workshops on photo topics throughout North America, Europe and Asia and is a multiple Gold Quill winner. Suzanne was the recipient of the 2007 IABC Chairman's Award. For more info: www.salvophoto.com For more fun: www.salvoatlarge.blogspot.com

Intro

For the past 24 years, Suzanne Salvo and her husband/partner, Chris, have made their children quasi-orphans with exotic worldwide photo assignments, taking them to over 65 different countries. But Suzanne says don't be jealous - being constantly on the road means they have no pets and all their houseplants are plastic. With homes in Houston, Texas, and outside Milan, Italy, Suzanne says she has progressed from an espresso drinker to an espresso user. She can parla Italiano, Español and four words of Russian. When asked about her success, she answers, "Salvo Photography keeps getting work because we're good at turning boring, ugly stuff into amazing award-winning photos." She is a past IABC international executive board member, conducts action-packed workshops on photo topics throughout the world and writes the "Visually Speaking" column for IABC's CWBulletin. She is a multiple Gold Quill winner and recipient of the 2007 IABC Chairman's Award.
